This is my final installment about the 2nd annual Experience PRS Event in Stevensville, Maryland. One thing I need to add is what a great host Paul, his wife and his entire staff were. They really went out of their way to make everyone feel welcomed both at his house and at the PRS facility. As far as I know, none of the other big guitar manufactures put on a junket like this. (They should take a lesson from this!)

It's amazing how in just over 20 years Paul has built such a giant of a company. It is evident that Paul and his employees are humble and down-to-earth and have not gotten too big for their britches. On a guitar note, the quality of the instruments and the workmanship continues to excel.

Check out this MP3 featuring various short clips of more of the event's music performances.
